Comments: I'm Canadian but I feel the need to add my support and sympathy on the side of the FDA regarding the current campaign by the compounding pharmacies to continue cross state line trade. I am really offended by the way these companies are trying to manipulate opinion and trying to garner support on the women's internet forums. Maybe just because I am Canadian. In Canada the regulation of pharmacies is a provincial matter, so of course cross boundary dispensing could be a problem. I have added the url of one pharmacy that seems to be in the forefront with this campaign, take a look and see the hormone advice they are giving women. DHEA sheeeesh. Not even available in Canada. They will send you a list of doctors that will prescribe it too.

Thanks for allowing me to give my opinion too. My concern is the way these compounding pharmacies imply that estriol and progesterone will prevent breast cancer.
